

Shall Our Young People Go to College?

By Russell Olt

Dean of Anderson College and Theological Seminary

What good will it do them? Is it worth while? Will it not make them conceited? Will it not cause them to lose out spiritually? These are a few of the questions asked today regarding sending our young people to college.

Let us first answer the question, "Is it worth while?" The high school graduate has a strong temptation to start making money upon graduation. The good position obtained for the summer is attractive, but note the figures of the United States Bureau of Education which points out that every day spent in school pays $9.02. The average wage of an uneducated laborer in forty years is $20,000. The average high school graduate in that time earns $40,000, or twice as much, while an additional four years in college quadruples the amount.

Again there is the appeal of commercial and private schools, correspondence, and otherwise which offer attractive possibilities to be achieved by short cut methods. The pinnacle of success and usefulness is not attained in this way, however. It is apt to be something like the farmer who met his hired hand carrying a lantern and asked him where he was going. "Courtin'," was the reply. "Courtin'," said the farmer, "with a lantern? I never took a lantern when I went courtin'!" "Hump," replied the man, "well, look what you got!" Yes, there are ways to "get by" in life with limited preparation, but what is to be accomplished by the short cut route? A full course in college offers the easy and logical way of securing the necessary preparation.

Not quite 1% of our American men graduate from college, but this 1% has given us 55% of our presidents, 47% of the members of the House of Representatives, 54% of our vice-presidents, 52% secretaries of state, 50% secretaries of the treasury, 57% attorney generals, and 69% of our justices of the Supreme Court.

It pays even a farmer to go to college. Statistics show that an average New York farmer with a college education earns 29% more than the average farmer there who has only a high school education. So I could go on with other professions and vocations and show that it pays handsomely to go to college. It pays in dollars and cents, and it pays in service which one is able to render to others. It lays the foundation for leadership in the community.

A study of a recent issue of Who's Who in America, a book supposed to record the names and data on all the outstanding men of the country, reveals some startling facts. An analysis of this book shows that without an education, one has not a single chance of becoming noted. The person with a common school education has one chance in 9,000, with a high school education, one chance in 450, while with a college education, one has one chance in 42.

Some will urge that true worth is not to be measured by money made or fame attained. True. But let it be remembered that money earned and fame made are marks of recognition of worth. If in these two fields recognition is so closely related to college education, the analogy may logically be carried over into the field of spiritual service. It follows, then, that a college education will make one more useful in God's service.

Sometimes well intentioned individuals point their fingers to a factory hand or ditch digger and say, "That man is a college graduate." Unfair! Would you want your whole congregation judged by the one who is lukewarm, or possesses some outstanding fault, or is a failure in the sense that he doesn't permit God to use him fully? Certainly not. Of course there is no dishonor in doing manual work, anyway, and the college man should be able to do whatever work he engages in a little better because he is a college man. After all the word education literally means "draw out." It merely draws out what is already in.

The story is told of an illiterate West Virginia farmer on whose land oil was suddenly discovered. He decided to give his daughter an education so she could take a place in society which would befit his wealth. After she had been in college six weeks, the farmer received a letter from the college to this effect: "Your daughter lacks ca-capacity. We are sorry, therefore, to ask that you withdraw her." The farmer at once had this letter written back: "I want you to understand that oil has been discovered on my farm. I am a rich man. If my daughter lacks capacity, buy her some, and I will pay the bill."

The moral of this story is simply this, don't point your finger at the failure who has gone out from the seminary or any other college and say, "There is a sample of what a college education will do for you."

College prepares for a life career as no other agency will. Here one's mettle is tested and he will come out either a failure or a success. If a man has the germs of success within — courage, will, initiative, and perseverance, the college training will spell success. It is an ideal place to have the best in one brought out. It has power to transform men and women into outstanding citizens and leaders. Essentially it has nothing in it to make one conceited, and does not do so any more than a new automobile, or a nice house has the chance of making some people conceited.

Now let us take up the question of the college and spirituality. Education is an ally of religion and never essentially antagonistic. Education is just as truly one of the divine processes as is the pumping of the blood by the heart. It is as much God given as any law of nature. Of course, if spirituality were to be defined in terms of emotional response, then little indeed would the college contribute. Today, however, we have reached a better understanding of what the Spirit filled life is, and to that love enhanced by intellectual enlightenment the college will contribute no small share.

True education is a training of mind, heart, and muscle. It is a vision of the world as it has been, is, and ought to be. It gives one an adequate conception of nature, an appreciation of the beautiful in life, a sympathy with mankind, a zeal to perform a great work, a recognition of the sanctity of life, and a reverence for God.

Few students know at the time of high school graduation what vocation they should enter. It is often wise not to attempt to solve that problem until after several years of college work. At college one often gets for the first time a real revelation of himself and the world into which he can best fit. His studies, his associations, his advices from the faculty, all contribute to making a wise choice.

In a unique way this is accomplished at Anderson College and Theological Seminary. Mental development divorced from spiritual ideals is fruitless. Here the student comes under the influence of an atmosphere which is distinctly spiritual and socially uplifting. The surroundings are intellectually stimulating and offer the very conditions needful for developing ambitions toward high and noble goals. The faculty is made up of God fearing men and women who honor God and His word and whose intimate touch with the student body cannot but guide them into the higher pathways of life.

Nowhere else is a finer group of young people to be found. They come from every section of the country and from abroad as well. To exchange ideas with those from other parts of the world is an education in itself. To make friendships with young people such as we have here will mean much in later life. To be able to have the spiritual side of one's nature developed along with the intellectual will be a source of gratification as long as one lives.

In these days no one need be denied an education. The cost of attending school here is lower than in most institutions. Besides, we have an employment bureau which is prepared to aid you to help yourself through school. A large majority of our students this year are earning at least a part of their way, while a few are earning all expenses. Of course too much work interferes with studies, but it is a commendable thing that so many of our young people have the ambition for an education that they work their way through school.

Yes, an education pays. It will make our young people better ministers and gospel workers. It will spread the truth faster because our college graduates from our schools will go ultimately into every type of executive, professional and business positions. This will mean that souls in every strata of life, high and low, will be touched by Church of God college young people.

Margaret Slattery tells this story. A young woman while in bathing, ventured out too far. She was caught in the undertow. The young man with her put forth strenuous but unsuccessful efforts to rescue her. One young man, an experienced swimmer, finally rescued the half drowned girl. Efforts to resuscitate her were made by none of her companions because they did not know how. Then came an automobile speeding down the hill to the spot. A nurse jumped out and began the work of resuscitation. The patient responded, and feebly came back to life. Then a physician previously summoned from the distant town came upon the scene. After making an examination, he took the nurse by the hand and said, "You have saved a life because you knew how."

In the near future souls will be saved in increasing numbers, and the church built up as never before because ministers and laymen alike will be better prepared. Yes, college training will aid in developing bigger and better men and women. It is a missionary project in no small sense of the word. The church of the future will be bigger and more powerful spiritually because our young people have had the advantage of a college education.

STUDENTS ACTIVE IN GOSPEL WORK

Several students of A.C. & T.S. conducted a cottage prayer-meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Reid, 412 East 10th Street. There was a splendid interest shown. Mr. Reid has been saved but a few months and the meeting was a source of real encouragement to him.

Bonnie Miller gave just such a talk as would be a blessing and help to young Christians.

Not only was the home benefited by such a meeting, but the students who attended counted it a real joy and rejoiced in what service they were capable of rendering.

There is a real field of evangelism right in this kind of work; it also repays in the joy of service and benefits received for those who take part.

CAMP MEETING

Preparations are being made toward the best Camp-meeting ever held at Anderson. Over two hundred people have been employed to render service to visitors. John Lackey has charge of the Lunch Stand on the grounds this year, and Eugene S. Reynolds again manages the Cafeteria.

EDITORIAL

On to South Bend

All our young people by this time know that it was decided by the young people and concurred in by the old people at Anderson Assembly last June to have our National Young People's Convention of the Church of God at a time and at a place apart from the General Camp-meeting at Anderson. This change is for the better, we believe. While there is not the slightest disposition on the part of our young people to separate themselves from their elders, and it is certain that a host of them should and will continue to be present at the Anderson Camp-meeting from year to year, yet it is altogether proper that they should have a time and a place to meet once a year to themselves, and thus be given an opportunity to discuss their problems without feeling that the interests of their seniors are the main interests of the meeting.

The Committee in charge has announced that the Convention will be held at South Bend, Indiana, over Labor Day season. So to South Bend goes the distinction of being host to our first National Young People's Convention in separate form. South Bend is to be congratulated for it is a real honor to have as guests a few hundreds of the finest, cleanest young people in the land. And the Convention itself is honored in being invited to this city, because South Bend is no mean city. It is a beautiful town of more than one hundred thousand people and is in easy reach of the greater bulk of our people. And Bro. W. C. Gray, pastor of the Church of God there, is a spiritual and wide-awake man with one of the strongest churches among us. While the larger portion of the delegates to this Convention will doubtless come from east of the Rockies, it is heartening to learn already that many young people's societies from the Pacific Coast States plan to send delegates. And this is as it should be for our brethren in the great west should certainly have representation in all the general affairs of the church. And wouldn't it be a fine thing if, say, in 1935, this Convention could be held on the Pacific Coast. Or, better still, wouldn't it be fine, if, say once in ten years the General Assembly and Camp-meeting could be held on the Pacific Coast? Such a thing is not out of the question.

The Committee in charge of the Convention in South Bend is composed of men and women who are thoroughly acquainted with the spiritual and social problems which confront our young people. A very fine program is being arranged and hundreds of young people are already praying and planning to make this meeting great in spiritual results.

Mrs. Elsie (Schiffner) Reynolds, '28, writes that the Southeastern Young People's Convention of the Church of God will hold its fifth annual session at the Neighborhood Church of God, Atlanta, Ga., August 22-24. The Southeast includes the Carolinas, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, and Mississippi, and it is expected that young people will be in attendance from all these States. The Atlanta church will provide lodging and sight-seeing tours free for all conventioners. The convention will close the Georgia State Camp-meeting, which convenes August 17th. Every effort is being made to put on the largest and best convention ever held by our young people in the Southeast. Russell Olt, Dean of Anderson College and Theological Seminary, will be the principal visiting minister. Other good speakers will be present also. Begin now to plan to attend. Address J. P. Reynolds, 364 Angier Ave., Atlanta, Ga., concerning the convention, and Rev. A. T. Rowe, 804 Edgewood Ave. N.E., Atlanta, Ga., concerning the Camp-meeting.

Rev. C. W. Hatch, '24, dedicated a fine new church at Salem, Ore., Sunday, April sixth. Rev. C. K. Chapman, of Eugene, Ore., preached the Dedictory Sermon, and Rev. F. W. Hopkins began an Evangelistic Campaign there Sunday evening of the same day. Brother Hatch advertises his church as "The Strangerless Church."

David and Lillian (Auman) Meier, '29, '28, are pastoring the work at Herington, Kan.

Mrs. Sheldon W. Helms, '28, says that she and her husband plan to build a home in Chestnut Heights. They desire to sell their cottage on the Camp-ground, and think that probably some man who has a family and is planning to come to school here would be interested in purchasing same. This cottage has a living-room, bed-room, bath, kitchen, pantry, front porch, lawn and flower beds, electricity, gas, and city water. The price, including small gas range, warm air circulating heater, window shades, curtain rods, combination bookcase, built-in shelves, and linoleums in all rooms except the bed-room, is $975.00 cash.

Should you be interested in this, you may correspond with S. W. Helms, % Gospel Trumpet Company, Anderson, Indiana.

Chas. Smith, '21, has resigned the work at LaGrange, Ind. Brother Smith is in poor health, and will appreciate the prayers of Alumni. He may be reached at the home of his wife's parents, the Settlemire's, at Huntington, Ind.

Roy and Mabel (Helms) Sanders, '28, have taken the pastorate at South Whitley, Ind. On account of her health, Mrs. Sanders will not teach in the Seminary next year.

Ruth (Bailey) Peterson, '26, is not enjoying the best of health. She and Bro. Herbert Peterson have been working hard for the advancement of the cause of Christ in Everett, Mass., for the past two years.

John Lackey, '29, Gilbert Swart, '27, Virgil Moore, '29, and Rolla Schultz, '24, are doing active work on the Y.M.C.A. Gospel Teams here in the city.

Otha and Evaline (Martin) Deniston, '29, are expecting to get out into active gospel work in the near future.

Warren and Alvina Roark were recent visitors at the Seminary.

Edith Norris, '26, is working in South Bend, Indiana.

What They Say About the Broadcaster

"I have just been reading the Broadcaster which you have been sending me, and truly I must say sweet are the memories of the Seminary. Words cannot express how much I appreciated being able to attend the School for a short time, and what a real blessing it was to my soul I shall never forget. I long to be there again some day.

"We are making plans to send our children to Warner Memorial University, and we are hoping that it will be as godly as is Anderson College and Theological Seminary.

"I am sending you $10.00 for which you can send me the Broadcaster for another year, use $2.50 for missionary work, and the rest for the School. Please give my love to all."

—Mrs. Allen Brinley,
Garden City, Kan.

"I am sending a check for $2.50 to pay for a copy of the 1930 "Echoes" and to renew my subscription to the Broadcaster. I do not wish to miss a single number. I am greatly interested in the School and am trying to keep in touch with it as much as possible."

—Mildred May,
New Springfield, Ohio

"We hope to be in school again some day. We enjoy reading the Broadcaster, and wish that it was published weekly instead of monthly."

—Edgar and Anna (Ratzlaff)
Thompson,

Lanet, Ala.

"No, surely I do not wish to miss a single issue of the Broadcaster. So please find enclosed $1.00 to renew my subscription for another year."

—Mrs. Minnie W. Semple, Dalton, Wis.

"Inclosed please find $1.00 to renew my subscription to the Broadcaster. Thanks for letting me know that it was due. I enjoy reading the paper so very much and am interested in seeing how the students are getting along. I love the School and pray that the Lord will bless the students wherever they go. I find no fault but see much help for the future work in them. I am not personally acquainted with very many who are now in school, but I wish you well and pray for you. I need your prayers."

—Mrs. S. O. Susag,
Paynesville, Minn.

"Again this morning we received our copy of the Broadcaster which we are always so anxious to get. It keeps one in touch with the School and its different activities.

"We have been intending to subscribe for it for some time but just neglected it. Herewith is $1.00 to pay for a year's subscription.

"Husband is away at this time holding evangelistic meetings; the Lord is blessing and souls are being saved.

—Mrs. Thomas Ramsay,
Taylor, Pa.

CONCERNING THE JUNE ISSUE

There will not be an issue of the Broadcaster during the month of June due to the fact that we are giving a part of the May number to Commencement exercises, and we wish to tell you about the happenings at Camp-meeting in the July Broadcaster. There is always more work to be done in June than at any other time during the year, and this June we expect to move the office of the paper to the main floor of the building which will mean that additional work will have to be done. We trust that the idea of skipping the June number will meet with the approval of all our subscribers.

Twelfth Annual Commencement

Dr. J. Raymond Schutz, Commencement Speaker

The twelfth annual commencement of Anderson College and Theological Seminary will be held in the Old Auditorium on the campus adjoining the campus on the evening of June 13 at 8:00 o'clock P.M. We have secured as our speaker this year a man who, without a doubt, will bring us one of the most powerful and spiritual messages we have had brought at any of our commencement programs. Reverend Schutz is professor of sociology in Manchester College and is pastor of a church near the college. He has spoken in most towns and cities in Indiana as well as in many cities throughout the country. He has travelled extensively, is thoroughly scholarly and is deeply spiritual. We are certain that no one will be disappointed in his message.

Last year we tried the experience of arranging the date of the Commencement so that camp-meeting and convention guests would reach Anderson in time to share the inspiration of the affair. It worked wonderfully well. On Friday the people came pouring in from all parts of the country and when the hour for commencement arrived two thousand people crowded into the auditorium to enjoy the program. We are expecting a like crowd this year and would advise early arrival at the auditorium that evening to assure a seat.

Our class this year is the smallest we have graduated for many years, numbering only twenty-three. This is because of the change in courses. After college courses were added many students who would have graduated from the three-year course transferred to the four-year course and thus the number of graduates is smaller than usual.

Even though the class is small it furnishes some very bright prospects for the ministry and other lines of active Christian work. In fact, a number are going immediately into full time work.

We shall be glad to meet a host of the friends and brethren at commencement.

Personal Mention and News Items

Louis Cecil Turner, Treasurer of the Indiana Student Volunteer Union, attended a Spring Retreat held at Franklin College, Franklin, Ind., April eleventh and twelfth. Brother Turner was very much impressed with the character of the young men and women of the various colleges in Indiana who make up the Student Volunteer Group in this State. Each student and every member of the faculty appreciates the fact that we have a student of Anderson College elected to the office of State Treasurer. Rev. Paul Robinson, of Anderson College, is State Financial Chairman.

The Seminary Ladies' Quartette spent a part of vacation week in Chicago singing in the following Churches of God in that city, South Side, West Lawn, and Bro. S. P. Dunn's congregation. They also visited the congregation at Joliet, Ill. John Lackey piloted the quartette in his car, and preached a number of times while away.

William Morgan, who graduates this year, has a four-room cottage with all modern conveniences: electricity, gas, hot and cold water, bath, and hot air furnace, which he is willing to sell at a very reasonable price, or rent furnished for $25.00 per month. Those who might be interested should address Brother Morgan in care of the College, Anderson, Ind.

The following students were in attendance at the Kentucky Young People's Convention held at Lexington, April 19, 20: Paul Froehlich, Earl Wells, Streeter Stuart, Frank Towers, Oral Clemens, George Blackwell, Albert Donaldson, Lucille Kardatzke, Eva Clare Holbrook, and Ruby Meyer.

Among those who went home during the Spring Vacation were: Earl Vetter, George Palmer, Olive Brady, Gilbert Swart, Faye Swick, Helen Holton, Homer and Orrin Bailey, Lucille Fenton, Ruth Hoffman, Ruth Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lumm, and Lloyd Powell.

Lloyd Powell and Paul Watson spent a portion of their vacation in Chicago, Joliet, and at Powell's home in Huntington, Ind.

J. A. VanOsdol, Anderson Attorney, who is chairman of the Indiana Crime and Law Enforcement Commission, addressed students of Anderson College in Chapel Tuesday, April twenty-second. Mr. Van Osdol spoke on "Our Crime Problem."

"Frank Towers ate so much that he was in misery. Someone at the table suggested that he loosen his belt and when Frank started to comply he got hold of his bow tie instead."

The Seminary Ladies' Quartette spent the week end of April twenty-seventh attending the Michigan Young People's Convention.

President J. A. Morrison spent vacation week with Bro. Lowry Quinn in a meeting at Moundsville, W. Va.

Heard and Seen About the Campus

Mazie DeArmond dislikes to have a car turn over when she is one of the occupants. She can hardly bear the idea of sitting on the ground in a petrified state with green grass growing all around. You do not understand? Well, neither did the spectators understand what Mazie was trying to say when they assisted her and the others out of the overturned auto.

It is a fine thing to have a lock-breaker around. Especially is this true if some absent-minded athlete has informed the janitor at the gymnasium that there will be no practise tonight. The girls can give you the particulars concerning this news item.

The financial condition of the College should be in excellent shape before long if some of the girls continue to be in other places than their room after the last bell has rung. Ask Melba Murphy what kind of a hair dresser Opal Davis is.

After listening to a stirring lecture on "Being up and Doing" a certain quartette sang the song, "I Shall Not Be Moved."

And now comes the glad report that Franklin Miller is going to have a greenhouse established at the College.

Miss Lopez (in English class)—Are there any particular lines that you like?

Alma Whitehouse—"This to disclose is all thy guardian can: Beware of all, but most beware of men!"

Miss Lopez—Are there any more? Streeter Stuart—"And she who scorns a man must die a maid."

Paul Froehlich has a hard time getting enough to eat. Do you suppose that is the reason he visits the dump pile occasionally?

Dean Olt—I was going by the corner last evening when I met a policeman going the wrong way. (Now the problem is, which way should the policeman have been going?)

After the speaker had given a rousing address on "The Folly of Getting into a Rut," someone in the audience asked them to sing, "O Deeper Yet I Pray."

Myrl Ahrendt has just found that the School does not furnish soap and powders to students for laundry purposes. Ask the boys how he came to know about it.

Detective Donaldson thinks that he will soon be able to bring the culprit to justice. Say, folk, Donaldson is some detective!

Biology teacher, "All trees have a bark, but all fish do not have scales."

Smart student, "The same can be said of dogs and butchers."

It is rumored that Miss Lopez is seriously considering a call to the Old Country.

OH, YOU GREEK!

I've got all my lessons but Greek And I've studied on that for a week But absorb that stuff? Nix!

I'm in a bad fix,
So I think I'll go jump in the creek

The Challenge of the Prophets

By Oswald Ryan

With an introduction by the former late Senator Albert J. Beveridge

This book is a searching analysis of present day problems in the realm of leadership—spiritual, political and economic. The declarations and decisions of the great prophets of Israel, premiers of their nation, whose methods are models for modern statecraft are interpreted for us and applied to the pressing needs of present day mankind.

CONTENTS

1. Ancient Leaders with a Modern Challenge
2. Defenders of Fair Play
3. For God and Country
4. A Master of Foreign Policy
5. An Unpopular Patriot
6. The Prophet of the Ages
7. The Challenge of the Prophets

The great prophets are presented in their historic order—Moses, shaper of laws that still govern most of the world, Nathan, the defender of the people's rights; Amos, advocate of mercy and insistent on realities; Hosea, Micah, and Isaiah who understood that class dominion at the expense of the general welfare always produces the death of any nation whether it be class control from the top to bottom of the social structure; Jeremiah, of noble birth and biting irony; and Jesus last and greatest of the prophets.

Oswald Ryan, author of this exceptional and remarkable book, is winner of the Baldwin National Prize for the best essay on a governmental subject. He has also produced a standard work on municipal government. He has had wide contact with the great statesmen of the world during the period following the war. He speaks with an authoritative grasp of national and world affairs. He speaks with confidence in the future—a real American champion of American ideals.

To read this book creates a desire to re-read the books of the prophets as recorded in the Bible.
